

Our Core Values set us apart.

I- Integrity
C- Compassion
A- Accountability
R- Respect
E- Excellence

That spells I Care, and we do!

We are unique in our relationship development and programmatic support. Our unique way of developing relationships with our at-risk youth are both caring and building sustained relationships. Many programs may be caring, but they are not easy to sustain. At-risk youth need relationships that are both caring and stable which promotes the need to build a sense of trust and allow them the time to communicate the complexity, frustrations and positive aspects of their lives. HOH earns the trust of our at-risk youth by building relationships.

We believe that there are four major components that play a role in the learning process, development and productivity of youth.

These components are Parents/Guardians, School, Community, and Religion/Spirituality.

At Hands of Healing we believe in appealing to these major components to assist us in nurturing productive members of society.

Each component has a specific role, and when utilized properly, produces an effective, productive youth.
